

Fair Togs

We've anticipated the demand of the early buyers with a complete stock of men's and boys' fall clothes in time for the Fair. Every body wants to look his best at the Fair, and its as cheap—you've got to get them later anyway—so you may as well buy them now and have the first pick of the endless variety which will be reduced to an undesirable collection in a short time.

Men's Suits

Adler-made—This make of ready-to-wear clothes for men is recognized by particular dressers to be the highest class clothes in the market; not "faddish"; not commonplace; but the kind that embodies the highest grade of workmanship, the most serviceable materials and the cleverest styles, and their cost is no more than many inferior makes. The new designs are brown and dark gray checks and plaids, of which there is a goodly number in this first showing. Prices $18 to $25.

Kaufman-made—This line of men's clothes is medium in price and high grade in character, the coats being made with concaved shoulders, shape-retaining fronts, the popular wide lapel and low-cut effect. Pants are made to conform to the demands of the most fashionable dressers. The variety of patterns and models is sufficiently extensive to satisfy the most particular young as well as the most conservative middle-aged man. Prices $10 to $15.

Boys' Clothes

It takes better workmen, more skill, finer materials to make the watch that's carried around in the vest pocket than it does to produce the noisy alarm clock that hangs in the chamber.

It requires a different plan, a higher purpose and more accurate methods to make the boys' clothes sold at this store than the ordinary kinds commonly offered to you.

A generous assortment of the new fall models has been received, many of them in the much-wanted checkered designs, all tailored and designed, in a manner that will meet the demand of the boys who want style as well as wear.

A boy's suit of good quality of fancy worsted in a neat checkered design, coat made double breasted with a wide lapel and well formed shoulders, substantially lined with serge lining, pants lined thruout and made with taped seams. Price $6.

Here's the school boy's pride—a wool cassimere plaid in a combination of black, blue and gray which produces a remarkably good color for school purposes, coat made double breasted in as good style as the highest priced suit, well lined thruout and pants made with taped seams and provided with belt loops. Price $5.
